

Rain Barrels

NORTH COOK COUNTY SOIL & WATER CONSERVATION DISTRICT

Rain barrels are upcycled Food Grade Barrels that were previously used for food shipment. Upcycling (refurbishing) barrels for a new use keeps them out of the landfill. By purchasing an upcycled rain barrel you're helping to conserve landfill space, energy and materials used in new product production. You'll be conserving water too!

After having been cleaned then rinsed in rain water barrels were fitted with a spigot, overflow hose connection, linking connector and screen for your immediate use.

Shapes will vary depending on which barrels are available for upcycling at the time of your order.

Linking / Connector Hose

A Linking Hose is used for attaching multiple barrels together. All our barrels are supplied with a linking connection toward the bottom end of the barrel directly below the overflow connection. This allows you to modify only one downspout from the roof in any given location around the home or building and have increased storage capacity. Simply remove the cap from the two linking connections, thread the linking hose to the two linking connections and the barrels are now joined. No tools required. The barrel taking the water from the roof then shares with the rest of the barrels that are linked together with the linking hose. All barrels fill equally and then empty equally. Some increase in pressure will be realized. However, the main advantage is increased capacity. During Summer months, when barrels start getting low, a 15 minute mid afternoon thunder burst will fill barrels back to capacity and will allow for weeks without rain while watering gardens and hanging plants.

Black 1/2 inch hose that is 4 feet long.
